ROAD PROJECTS CONSIDERED BY COUNTY

PORTERVILLE - Tourist and Highway committee of the Porterville chamber of commerce will present a report on status of county road construction in the vicinity of Porterville during a meeting of directors of the Porterville chamber of commerce this morning.

The report was prepared by committee members on a basis of information obtained from Luke Augustson, Tulare County Road commissioner, who said that in his proposed budget for 1969-70, he will include the following:

Construction of a bridge at the Jaye street crossing of the Tule river; improvement of the section of Henderson avenue between the southeast corner of the Monache High School campus and Freeway 65; and improvement of Newcomb between Olive and Henderson, however, the latter project hinges on participation by the City of Porterville.

Concerning development of Success Drive from its present point of termination at Date street along the old railroad right-of-way to the Worth bridge, Augustson said that the county will consider this extension when the City of Porterville opens the section of this road that lies in the city, from Plano road toward the east, but not until the city does this.

Augustson said that the opening of Success Drive between the Worth bridge and Plano road would alleviate county problems of maintenance

RODEO ARENA IMPROVEMENTS PLANNED

NOT MUCH of a picture? Right. It's just those "shacks" that are used as concession stands at the Springville rodeo grounds ... But they'll be gone before the end of this week, and by the time the Springville-Sierra rodeo comes around on April 12-13, brand new concession stands will be in operation. Plan is to put all concessions into a single, long building that will be centered by the rodeo grounds office. (Farm Tribune photo)

Employees Vote To Terminate Union Ties

PORTERVILLE - Employees of the Tulare County Lemon association have voted 44 to 12 to end a three-year span of union authority and thus sever all ties with Teamsters Local 616.

The long-pending resort to ballot followed on the heels of a February 4 National Labor Relations Board order. The consent election effectively de-certifies the union from further involvement as employees representatives, according to Ivan G. McDaniel, association counsel.

Teamsters Local 616 was certified to represent the employees by consent election in late February, 1966 and has continued to do so until this date, McDaniel said. He added that Tulare County Lemon association was one of 11 San Joaquin valley citrus associations that agreed to certification elections at the request of their employees in 1966 and 1967.

Out of these initial 11, five voted for union certification, while employees of the other six

County Taxes Delinquent April 10

VISALIA - Second installment of Tulare county taxes that became due and payable on February 1 will become delinquent after April 10, according to J.A. Janelli, county tax collector.

Janelli says that to avoid a penalty, mail payments must be postmarked April 10. He also says that persons who have recently purchased property should check their escrow papers to assure themselves that second installment taxes have been paid.

Police Officers To Be Honored; Gange Will Speak

PORTERVILLE - Police officers will be honored, and Gary Gange will speak, at annual Crime Prevention Week banquet, sponsored by the Porterville Exchange club, Saturday evening in the Lantern room at Gang Sue's.

A social hour will get underway at 6:30 p.m.; dinner will be served at 7:30 p.m.

Outstanding officer will be named, and presented with a plaque, from the Porterville City Police department, the Porterville substation of the Tulare County Sheriff's office, and the Porterville headquarters of the California Highway Patrol.

Serving as master of ceremonies, and presenting awards, will be Judge George Carter. Presiding will be Larry Cotta, president of the Exchange club.

Gange, a resident of Visalia, is a speaker of national reputation who combines solid philosophies in regard to modern affairs with a fine sense of humor.

STRATHMORE SCHOOL BOND VOTE MARCH 11

STRATHMORE - Voters of the Strathmore Union High School district will go to the polls March 11 to cast ballots on a $300,000 bond issue that would provide construction funds for what is called "critically needed facilities on the campus."

The proposed building program, if the bonds carry, includes: A library with two classrooms; two classrooms; and physical education dressing rooms.

Present library would be converted into a business education facility to allow for expansion of offerings in business courses. Enlargement of physical education dressing room facilities, it is said, would alleviate severe overcrowding in existing dressing rooms.

Cost of the bond issue to district residents would be 15 cents per $100 of assessed valuation, with this tax rate decreasing as the principal amount is paid off. If the bond issue is successful, it is anticipated that the construction project could be put to bid next December, with a completion date of September, 1970.

Present enrollment at Strathmore high is approximately 340 students, an

All interested persons are invited to attend, according to Dick Coon, Springville chamber president.

CALIFORNIA FARM EQUIPMENT SHOW - IT'S JUST THE GREATEST

SOME IDEA of the magnitude of the California Farm Equipment show that is completing a three-day run today, February 13, on the

Tulare County fair grounds in Tulare, can be gained from the above pictures - and there is another outdoor exhibit area almost as large, plus a fair building full of smaller types of agricultural equipment and other items related to agriculture. Some 250 exhibitors, representing many major national manufacturers, on the grounds with the latest in agricultural equipment. Our editorial comment, "See this show!" There is no admission charge. Additional pictures page 4.

Editorial Comment

A REMARKABLE DOCUMENT

We have at hand a most remarkable document entitled, "Know Your Welfare Rights," published by the Tulare County Legal Services, 201 East Acequia street, Visalia.

Major sections of the document cover: How can I get welfare?; What can I get?; What are my rights?

Theory back of this publication - and back of similar publications in other areas - is that if the government makes certain benefits available to certain people, then government should follow through by making a concerted effort to let people know about possible benefits, let people know their rights, and to even push people into the governmental benefit channels.

It points out that if a man or woman on welfare does not like their case worker, or does not like welfare department decision, they can get a fair hearing - with assistance from attorneys of the Tulare County Legal services.

The "fair hearing" idea appears so often that it seems the intention may well be to create the impression that welfare recipients have not been able to get a fair hearing in the past.

But the statement in this document that takes the rag off the bush is this, addressed to persons on welfare, "If you don't want to work, there is no good reason why welfare can force you to work, no matter what your (case) worker says."

Then, "if welfare tries to put pressure on you, call Legal Services."

Tone of the document rings with the sound of rabble rousing. Between the lines we seem to read that welfare is not only a right, but it is also a way of life that must be preserved, nurtured and propagated.

Somehow or other we do not like this document.

Fellers Conclude No Peace Treaty In Sight For War on Poverty

UNCLE CLARENCE
... from Clear Creek

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

The fellers got to wondering at the country store Saturday night what will happen to the War on Poverty now that a new Administration has took over in Washington. They spent most of the session discussing the matter after it was brought up by Zeke Grubb. They studied it up one side and down the other and they final decided pore folks is here to stay.

Zeke give a report on what the Center for Policy Research found out when they checked into how the pore war is going. The sad fact is, said Zeke, poverty in this country is giving up at a slower rate since the war started than it was back when it was at peace with the Government. According to the Center, Zeke reported, it will take the Government 51 year to git rid of poverty complete at the rate we're winning the war now. If the Government gives up the fight poverty will be gone in 30 year.

Fighting a war like that was like treating a bad cold, allowed Zeke. If you take all the high price medicine you can git fer a cold, it'll give up in seven days, but if you let it alone, it'll go away in a week, was Zeke's words. Anyhow, said Zeke, the Office of Economic Opportunity claims the Center for Policy Research is all wrong.

The OEO says they used the same figgers on the war to show that the Government will win the war in jest 10 year. Zeke allowed it sounded to him like reports on the Vietnam War where our side and the communists claims they win the same battles.

Personal, said Zeke, he was siding with the Center on account of some figgers on the cost of the War on Poverty he had saw. Federal aid to the pore fer 1967 was $24.6 billion, he said, and they is asking $27.7 billion in the next budget. Zeke said this Government could give ever North Vietnamese soldier $50,000 to quit fighting and go home, and we'd come out ahead, and he was of the opinion we could buy off all the pore cheaper than we can hire a army to fight 'em.

Ed Doolittle, that has been fighting Democrats longer than they has been fighting poverty, was agreed with Zeke that we'll never beat poverty the way we're going. Ed said 200,000 people went bankrupt in this country last year, and they went owing $500 million. That's 200,000 more pore war refugees, allowed Ed, not counting them stuck with all them bills.

The Government has set $3,335 as the pore level fer a family of four, said Ed, and that's the trouble with the war. He said we had ought to move the pore level up to $10,000 a year income fer a family, and he had saw economists say jest 48 per cent will make that much 10 year from now. By jumping the pore level, Ed said, we can be shore of having the pore in the majority fer the next 10 year. If we can't beat poverty, let's join it, was Ed's words.

Yours truly,
—Uncle Clarence.

One day it will stop raining and we will have to revise all the excuses that we hand out to our wives and customers. At present almost anything can be put off or explained away by the prevailing wetness but like all good excuses this one will also soon come to an end. When it does we'll have to start spraying roses, spading the garden, or planting bare root trees.

The arrival of tomato plants and hot caps sort of indicates that spring is coming. They may freeze once or twice yet but we are willing to sell them if you're willing to take the chance. Also available are cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli, and onions which are not easily frozen.

Lawns may be fertilized during this wet season with assurance that the fertilizer will be washed into the soil in almost no time at all. At the same time seed can be planted to fill in the bare spots or to start new lawns. February is especially good for most all seeds because the ground is warming up and there's a good chance the lawn will outgrow the weeds.

MATHIAS INTRODUCES LEGISLATION TO IMPLEMENT THE EAST SIDE PROJECT

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Congressman Bob Mathias (R-18th Dist.) has introduced legislation to authorize the East Side division of the Central Valley project. According to Mathias, the 20 year, $353 million project is necessary to guarantee that Tulare and Kern counties will have the water they need in the 1990's.

Total service area of the project encompasses 5,300,000 acres along the east side of the San Joaquin valley. The project would import 1,500,000 acre-feet of water annually into this area from existing Central Valley project facilities and unappropriated flows of the Sacramento, American and Stanislaus rivers. In all but extremely dry periods, the full 1,500,000 acre-feet would be available every year. The East Side division conveyance facilities would be designed to transport even greater quantities of water for future needs and from future sources.

Mathias said that the primary water supply for the East Side division would be diverted from the Sacramento river near Hood, and conveyed to and through the Folsom South canal to the East Side canal. The East Side canal will extend from Folsom South to the Kern river near Bakersfield. The distance from the Sacramento river to the end of the East Side canal at Kern river is over 300 miles.

In addition to construction of the East Side canal, the legislation introduced by Mathias would authorize five new reservoirs, including the 300,000 acre-foot Hungry Hollow Reservoir, just south of Porterville on Deer Creek. Hungry Hollow will be a major facility, designed to store and re-regulate a portion of the water supply for use during the irrigation season, and will provide the water supply for the Porterville-Bakersfield canal, that will serve an area above the existing Friant-Kern canal.

In addition to providing irrigation for an extensive and fertile area, Mathias pointed out that East Side will provide many other benefits. A substantial amount of the project water is allocated for municipal and industrial uses that will allow the cities of the San Joaquin valley to attract new industry and provide for growing populations. Fish and wildlife resources will also be improved by the project, and recreation opportunities expanded.

A revised feasibility study, recently released by the Department of the Interior, shows that the project will have a total benefit - cost ratio of 2.4 to 1.

Mathias concluded by saying, "The benefits that will come from this project and the needs that must be filled, mean that we should get started as soon as possible."

associations voted to remain non-union. Of the five that went union, employees of three have since voted for union de-certification, one has a union contract pending and the other has a petition pending with the NLRB for union de-certification.

McDaniel said that there are 54 citrus associations in the San Joaquin valley of which, to date, employees of only 11 have become involved in the consent vote for or against union status. He said that in all instances the will of the employees has been respected by both parties in peaceful elections conducted under NLRB auspices.

Of the 54 citrus associations in the San Joaquin valley, employees of 11 have been involved in elections for and against union certification since 1966.

Employees of the Tulare County Lemon association, the Sierra Citrus association, and Waddell & Son, voted for union certification, but later voted for de-certification; Central Valley Citrus & Packing company employees voted for union certification but now have a petition filed and pending for de-certification.

The union was rejected in elections involving employees of Hillside Packing association; Hardinger & Liggett Inc.; La Bue Brothers; Sunflower Citrus Packing Corp.; and Porterville Citrus association, the latter by disclaimer.

Travel In Sequoia, Kings Canyon National Parks Hits New High In '68

THREE RIVERS - Travel to Sequoia and Kings Canyon National parks reached a new high in 1968 with 1,929,500 visits, according to Superintendent John S. McLaughlin. This is a 10% increase over last year and 203,500 visits more than the previous record set in 1965.

Kings Canyon National park received over one million visits for the first time with a total of 1,060,900. Sequoia National park recorded 868,600 visits, slightly less than the 877,330 in 1965. An increase was posted each month during the past year except for the months of July and October.

The upward trend in camping was partially responsible for the increase in travel. Use of camper and trailer units increased from employees still have union affiliation that they voted in 1966.

83,800 overnight visits in 1965 to 112,600 in 1968, and tent camping increased from 322,800 to 334,100. Reduced snowfall in the spring permitted early use of park facilities, thereby contributing to the increased visitation.

Hiking and use of pack stock in the backcountry continued to be popular with 38,600 persons spending 98,500 visitor days in the high country.

Nearly a half million of the visitors to the two Parks are from out-of-state. This is an increase of 13% over the amount of out-of-state travel recorded in 1963. Two-thirds of the California visitors traveled up to 300 miles to reach the Parks.

CLIMATE FOR AMERICAN AGRICULTURE MUST CHANGE, OR BASIC STRENGTH OF AMERICA WILL BE IN JEOPARDY

SAN FRANCISCO - Congressman Odin Langen, (R., Minn.) issued a warning for the nation's consumers and businessmen last Friday when he said that the economic climate for American agriculture must be changed, or else the very basis for the country's strength will be in jeopardy.

"Agriculture, the nation's and California's largest industry, must be treated with the same respect and economic concern as the other great industries in the United States," said the Minnesota Congressman, as he addressed the annual meeting of the California Beet Growers association, in the San Francisco Hilton hotel.

Langen is chairman of the Republican House Task Force on Agriculture, a member of the House Appropriations committee, and the ranking Republican on the committee handling agricultural appropriations.

Quoting U.S. News and World Report, Langen pointed out that U.S. agriculture leads the next 11 largest industries by a wide margin, ranking first in total number of workers employed, first in equipment expenditures, and first in total assets. The total investment in American agriculture totals 281 billion dollars, more than the combined total of the next six largest industries.

"The reason American agriculture is in trouble," said Langen, "is that gross sales amount to only 17 percent of total assets. The average for the next eleven leading industries, is 107 per cent.

"American agriculture is currently operating on a deficit basis. Unsuccessful government programs, inadequate markets, high labor costs, general inflation, and other problems are all important causes. But the main cause of agriculture's problem is simply a matter of a continuing inadequate price to meet the sharply rising cost of production."

"Since 1960," said Langen, "farm indebtedness has increased from $23 billion to over $50 billion ... or more than ten percent per year. At the same time, farm income has remained constant. In 1960, the average farmer paid 11 percent of his net income for interest; today he pays over 20 percent."

"Could any other American industry have survived under those conditions? For example, imagine the automotive industry or the textile industry, absorbing a 10 percent increase in indebtedness every year, while their income remained the same."

Langen predicted that if America continues to ignore the direction of its largest industry, agriculture, the nation will be in danger of a great economic recession. But he added that the situation can be corrected.

The new Administration, and the new Congress show encouraging signs for agriculture, according to Langen, and there will likely be more attention placed on agricultural prices. But he predicted that it will take much more than that.

Langen suggested that reaching the consumer is the most important factor in solving the problems. He said the consumer must be alerted to the dire consequences facing the economy. The business community must also be made acutely aware of the facts, and all of agriculture and agribusiness must realize the importance of getting the message across. The American consumer today spends only 17½ percent of his income on food - the lowest, by far, in the world.

Two fears must be dispelled according to Langen: One is the fear that higher farm prices will bring sharply higher food prices, and the second is the fear that farm price increases will hurt our foreign markets. Neither fear is justified, he said.

Pointing to the sugar beet industry as an example for agriculture to note, Langen cited the fact that prices received by the nation's beet growers have increased 23 percent during the 1960's, their gross income has almost doubled, their net profit has increased 20 percent, and total production has increased by 50 percent. At the same time, the price of sugar has increased by only one-half cent per pound to the consumer.

Langen emphasized that on the other hand, most other farmers have not been so fortunate. The wheat grower for example would be receiving $2.50 per bushel today if he'd had the same 23 percent increase during the 1960's. Instead he is receiving $1.25 per bushel.

"What a boon it would be to rural America, the economy, and the government of these United States," said Langen, "if wheat farmers had gained this same 23 percent increase. And the consumer would have been affected very little, since the wheat—in a loaf of bread accounts for only 10 percent of the cost."

There is certainly room for further improvement for our sugar beet growers," said Langen, "but at least this one industry is to be commended for making such progress."

"We who believe that American Agriculture must receive a fair return for its contribution to the nation, must have the unanimous support of every agricultural interest, whether farmers, farm organizations, agribusiness, small towns, or otherwise," said Langen.

"We either stand together ... or we'll witness each segment of America's largest industry fall in turn."

increase from 303 during 1967-68 year. A minimum of 380 students is anticipated by the fall of 1970, when the new buildings would become available.

The bond issue proposal originated in joint meetings between the school governing board and members of a Strathmore High School Steering committee, following an in-depth analysis of needs on the school campus.

The construction project would ease existing crowded conditions on the campus, it is stated, and would allow for the growth that is predicted by the vigor in growth; ease of stand establishment; superior size crown and development; rapid recovery after cutting; less winter dormancy; resistance to spotted aphid and pea aphid; persistent growth habit; fine stems; extreme leafiness and resistance to mildew and other foliage diseases. El Camino alfalfa seed will be available for spring planting, according to representative of Germain's Inc., of Fresno, exclusive distributors of the seed in the 11 Western states.

DIANE TIBERT is actually sitting down, but that is really quite a stand of alfalfa. It's a "new breed," El Camino, that was developed at Bakersfield by the Agronomics Research division of Waterman-Loomis, nationally recognized alfalfa breeders and the first U.S. firm to devote all its activities to alfalfa research. El Camino was developed to meet 11 major factors: An alfalfa with extreme adaptability to climate of the southern San Joaquin valley;

and traffic control on Date street.

Improvement of Newcomb toward the north from the Monache High School campus might possibly be included in the county road department budget in 1972-73; improvement of Henderson toward the west from Newcomb is "several years away;" route for extension of Henderson east from Plano road, across the foothills to the north end of Lake Success, has been surveyed, but is not being considered in any immediate county plans.

Concerning continuation of major road projects now underway, Augustson said that continuation of four-lane construction on Olive avenue from the west end of the current construction project to Cotton Center is probably three to four years away; following completion of the current project to improve Plano road from north of Lewis hill to the Frazier Valley highway, no further work is planned on this road for probably 10 years.

Ultimate plan on Plano road, however, is to continue fall of 1970.

Strathmore Union High School district has no bonded indebtedness at the present time. Two bond issues, voted in previous years, have been paid off.

improvement north from Frazier Valley highway, and also south to Fountain Springs. A "bottleneck" on this road now exists within the City of Porterville between Putnam avenue and a point just north of Morton avenue.

Construction of a bridge across the Tule river at Westwood, also road improvement on both sides of this bridge, will probably be completed as a Federal Aid Secondary road project within the next five years.

At the present time, the county road department has no plan for a Tule river bridge in the East Porterville area. Augustson said that if people of the community desire a new bridge in that area, a move should be started by petition to the Tulare county board of supervisors.

Augustson pointed out that present road and bridge planning might be modified in the 1969-70 budget because of emergency demands created by recent floods, and that changes in his proposed budget can be made during budget hearings by the county board of supervisors.

The proposed road department budget will probably be submitted to county supervisors the latter part of March, Augustson said.

At a meeting of the Tulare County Chamber of Commerce Highway committee Monday night, Augustson said that estimated flood damage to county roads and bridges is $600,000, however, he hopes to get about 80 per cent of this money in disaster area relief funds through federal and state sources.

Repair of washed-out approaches at bridges along the Tule river will be completed within a month, Augustson said, with one-way traffic possible across these bridges within a few days.
